

CGA to Transition to a New Regulatory Platform

Willemstad, October 7, 2026

The Curaçao Gaming Authority (CGA) hereby announces that its current online gaming portal will not be returned to service. The discontinuation of the portal also entails the conclusion of the associated service arrangements supporting the platform.

The CGA is taking the necessary steps to transition away from the current platform and the services associated with it, while ensuring continuity of its regulatory functions.

The CGA acknowledges the important role that the online portal has played in supporting the implementation of Curaçao's online gaming sector reform since 2024.

The discontinuation of the portal does not affect the validity of existing licenses, the obligations of licensed operators, or the CGA's ongoing regulatory and supervisory responsibilities. Licensing, compliance, and supervision activities remain in effect and will continue through alternative arrangements while an interim solution is being implemented to facilitate the continued processing of licenses and regulatory matters. Further information regarding these arrangements will be communicated as soon as possible, currently targeted for no later than October 9, 2026.

Given that the availability of the current digital seal will be affected, the CGA will shortly introduce an alternative mechanism through which operators can demonstrate that a domain is licensed by the CGA.

The CGA also continues its efforts in response to the unauthorized access incident, including containment of the data leak, and remains focused on protecting the integrity of its regulatory functions and information assets.

We recognize that this transition may create challenges for operators and appreciate their cooperation and understanding during this period. Further updates will be provided as additional information becomes available.
